Creative expression class

Recording the past

By Lynne Locke

"We're just losing an absolute treasure of experience that will never come again in our lives," commented Marion Anderson who is trying to preserve that "treasure of experience" by recording the personalities and lives of older people.

Marion and her husband Bob are coordinating a federally funded creative expression class through Chaffey College Community Education. The Andersons and their volunteers visit residents of local convalescent homes to record their experiences and the things they've learned about living.

"We are trying to have a two-way street where the rich tapestry of these people's lives can reach out into the community and we can bring the community into them," said Mrs. Anderson.

"So often they feel discarded. They feel they've hit the end of the road." But retired people have "a kind of balance and time to think. The future needs to be rooted in the character of the past," she added.

Teenagers who have visited convalescent homes with the Andersons have found they can talk with older people. In spite of a 65-year difference in ages, the teenagers discover they are facing problems the older people have experienced, noted Mrs. Anderson.

"The struggle in the human heart is identical although they're not speaking modern language," she said.

The Andersons have become good friends with many of the people they have interviewed. Mrs. Anderson said, "Unless you really love people, they aren't about to let you into the deep things — especially if there's sorrow. There is great trust on their part to allow their stories to be used to help others."

"We're not writers, but we have a passionate conviction. I would like to see a book the older Americans, the lost million speaking to us all from their accumulated experience," she said.

The people they have interviewed include a man who recycles junk into artistic pieces; a woman who was once a hard-working Nebraska farm girl and now spreads happiness with her hand-made Raggedy Ann dolls; a woman whose family lived in California before it was a state; a man whose father was a U.S. marshal in Oklahoma Territory where he tried to convince outlaws to surrender and change their lives.

Mrs. Anderson said the creative expression volunteers try to find the key characteristic of each person, "a window into the life of a person's spirit."

One of the most precious characteristics is a "a really firm, fearless faith," commented Anderson. "Some people really have it and some just talk it," he added.

The creative expression project has changed the older people, Anderson said. "Nearly all are more at ease and outgoing. They are happier with life than they were before they found a couple of new friends."

Mrs. Anderson said that older people gain a "sense of self-worth and esteem when they realize they have something to give and are appreciated for it."

After individual interviews, the creative expression volunteers gather the people together and read their stories to them. "The sparks begin to flow and people begin to converse. It changes the whole atmosphere," said Mrs. Anderson.

"It's no easy thing to live in peace in a convalescent home with different characters with wants, fears and sorrows," noted Anderson.

Bob Anderson who is 72 years old, and Marion, 68, are still surprised to find themselves coordinating the creative expression project. Anderson had a career in business and, Mrs. Anderson was an actress who appeared in such films as "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "Peter Pan."

They traveled around the world with "Moral Rearmament" making plays and films. "Little did we dream we would sit in a little convalescent home and find it thrilling. The potential is just as great," said Mrs. Anderson.

The stories are being duplicated for use in Chaffey College classes. But Mrs. Anderson would like to see the project on a wider scale.

"I'd love to see vignette films that would show the quality of a person's life, the unique contribution they have to give," she said.

Her roots go deep

Margaret Cope remembers

Once upon a time a little Indian girl named Margaret Aguilar used to raise her dark eyes to the sharply blue sky and the white billowing clouds above the long inland valley of San Bernardino, and wonder at the beauty and color of it all.

San Bernardino, Cucamonga, Upland, all the way to Los Angeles seemed her world and home. The valley was full of orange and lemon groves, and the air with the unforgettable fragrance of their blossoms.

The clearly etched mountains on both sides sometimes disappeared like magic in the clouds and mists that lay heavily on them. Usually she could see for miles in all directions.

If she saw a cloud in the distance, it was probably her father or his neighbors on horseback, traveling long hours from place to place. If she heard a screech, it was probably the cry of a small animal in the fields, as a hawk, hanging almost motionless in the sky, which dropped with astounding speed straight down on what its penetrating eyes had spotted far below.

Margaret Aguilar Cope is 83. But her age is not as important as her heritage and character. Her roots go far deeper in this land than most of ours. Her ancestors were here long before America was "discovered."

She is one of the original Americans. Her family has deep roots in California. Her great-grandfather lived in Los Angeles under Pio Pico, the last Mexican governor of the state. He came by oxen from far away, but it is so long ago she doesn't remember where he came from.

Her grandfather owned land and cattle in San Bernardino and nearby Hemet, which he sold for practically nothing. Being too generous for his own good, when someone said they couldn't pay what they owed he would shrug and say, "Oh, just forget it."

Margaret's mother, of Spanish descent, eloped when she was only 14. Margaret remembers a favorite family story of when her father was courting her mother. He would ride on horseback from San Bernardino to Santa Barbara.

One night he bedded down in the dark in an enclosed field and found, when he awoke in the morning, he was sleeping on a grave. "No Indian ever jumped on his horse and rode away faster," she said with a laugh.

Her parents had 15 children with Margaret in the middle. "I was a tomboy," she remembered. "I was always knocking things over. I started the mischief and either finished it or got out of it. When my little brother got into my things I'd slap him and then give him candy or something to keep quiet. Can't tell me I wasn't smart."

"I got a spanking three or four times a day. I was full of 'vinegar' like my father. I could be a wild Indian right now if I wanted! But I never rode the horses — somehow I was afraid," she said.

Margaret's memories of her childhood are still clear. The crude wooden house she lived in had large cracks through which the wind and cold penetrated easily. "But nobody died from the cold. I guess we were tough — we had to be. We made our own fun. We loved to dance the Indian dances," she said.

All the family, including the children, had to work very hard. They were living in the San Jacinto mountains when her father lost his arm in a saw mill accident, and they had to work harder than ever. As soon as he was able, her father went right on — his wife ploughing beside him, carrying her baby on her arm. They picked and packed apricots, oranges and lemons.

For a period the children attended government school in Riverside established to educate the Indians. They had to board there and were not allowed to speak their own language. "We had to speak American." It was a tragedy for her and the children she knew — as if their own language was somehow a disgrace. "I was made — I am still mad about it. We used to cry like coyotes from sheer loneliness," she said.

But no one could rob this Indian family of their happiness and joy in being together. "We had lots of love and enough to eat. We grew all the vegetables we needed. My Dad had some cattle. My mother canned a lot. Clothes were given by the churches. We rotated crops and traded with our neighbors. Never sold it, but traded or gave it."

"Money wasn't God then. Who was our God? God Himself. We were mission Indians and we always went to church. I remember driving with horses and old wagons all the way to the Plaza Church in Los Angeles. In Santa Barbara they used to call us the 'covered-wagon girls,'" commented Margaret.

The family gathered herbs at the Prado River. They would all go in a wagon and swim and then pick herbs. One special herb was called Yerba Mansa.

She remembered a time of crisis when she had a badly swollen leg from the bite of a Black Widow spider. "Of course it would be me. I didn't have sense enough to be scared. I wasn't even crying. But an old Indian neighbor heard my mother had a very sick girl."

"She came at once and tried to talk to mama in her tongue, but my mother could only speak Spanish and English. Finally the signs and gestures made her realize the old woman must mean garlic. When it was brought, she crushed it in a small cloth bag and put it on my leg. She kept at it all day and all night until it got well."

"I have grandchildren, 14, 13, 12, and they are darlings. How can I have grandchildren when I never had a child of my own? My daughter is adopted. She has Indian blood — a beautiful girl. Her husband is an Oklahoma Indian."

She said, "My family is closing up though. My younger brother and I are the last. Families don't have what they used to have. We've lost something. I don't know where we lost it. Maybe it's T.V. We don't have the tight, warm family life. We're flying around too fast. Now there is clash. You have to pay a price for unity," Margaret concluded.

The art of Bob Baumann

By Lynne Locke
Upland photographer Bob Baumann uses hot water to turn a standard picture into something special. An exhibit of his photographic abstracts, special effects and portraits will be displayed at Montclair Plaza June 2-9. Photographs by students from Chaffey, Mt. San Antonio and Citrus colleges also will be displayed.

Although some of the photographs are portraits of people or animals, the emphasis of the exhibit is on texture and movement.

Baumann creates the effect of feathers, leaf veins, flames or bubbles by placing drops of hot water on exposed negatives. Other special effects are created by sandwiching together two negatives to combine their image.

An abstract swirl pattern with a feeling of movement was created by using hot water on blank film exposed to room light. Baumann also used water to blur the sharp figure of a man with a jump rope. The blur shows the jumping movement better than the original clear image, he said.

Other photographs in the exhibit contrast body shapes and abstract shapes or patterns. One abstract looks like several microscopic protozoa congregating, another like a beach scene.

Baumann took 14 exposures — one daylight and 13 at night — to get a photograph of orchard smudgepots burning at night.

He specializes in portraits that "show something of the personality. I show the person as natural as I can," he said. His goal is to show the people at their best and to present them naturally as their families see them.

Dogs and cats also are subjects for portraits. "We do everything in the studio except horses, which we take outside," Baumann said. A problem with large dogs such as Great Danes and English bulldogs is they're "so solid you can't move them," for a better pose, he said.

He uses noises, bit of cheese,

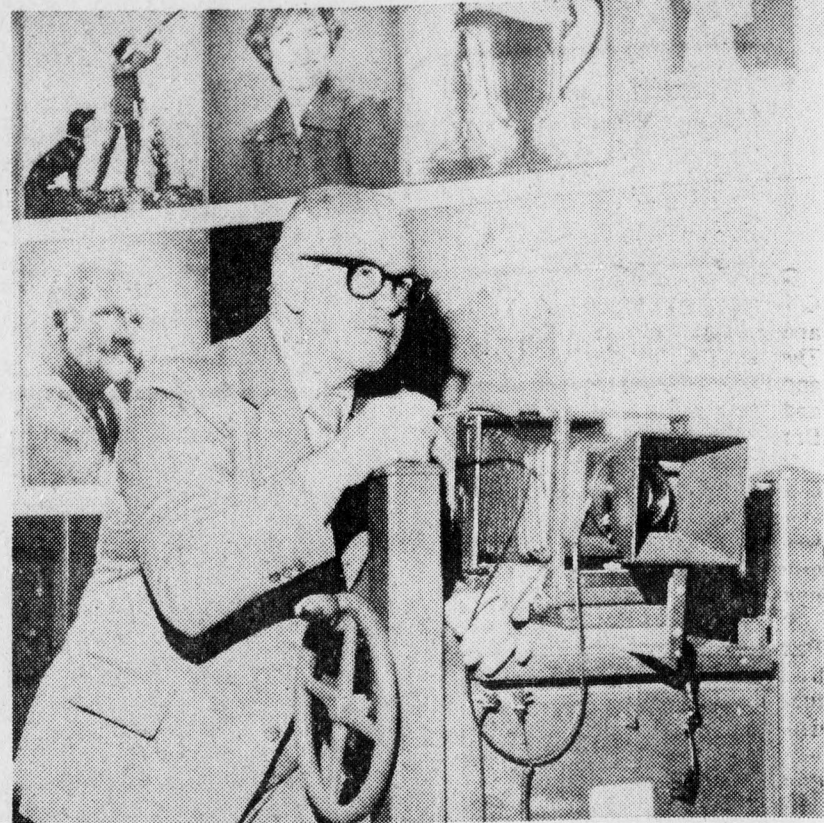

"anything to make them prick up their ears." Animals especially react to a feather duster tied on the end of a long rod, Baumann said.

He has operated his own studio at 272 E. Ninth St. for 17 years and taught photography at Chaffey College 1950-1958. He is a graduate of the Art Center School of Photography in Hollywood.

Baumann said, "You can get more with black and white photography, more mood and more interpretation. But the public is conditioned to want color."

People who want to become photographers should learn as much technique as possible in high school and junior college, he said. Then they can get additional training while they practice what they have learned.

Baumann said, looking at photography books is a good way to learn the basics of lighting and composition. One of the best ways to learn portrait photography is practicing on children, relatives, friends and neighbors, he said.

Baumann's photography exhibit — including portraits, abstracts and experimental photographs — will be displayed at Montclair Plaza June 2-9. Photographs by students at Chaffey, Citrus and Mt. San Antonio colleges also will be displayed. (Photo by Lynne Locke)

ALHS students share in win

Alta Loma high School students played an important part in the victory in the 100-lap NASCAR Winston West Grand National race in Phoenix May 10 by Indianapolis 500 veteran Bill Cheesbourg, 47, of Tucson.

The Alta Loma - based 1972 Chevelle no. 94 needed the starter rebuilt and an exhaust manifold gasket replaced. Car owner Mike Kord of Alta Loma didn't have the time to complete the repairs due to having to run his business, so he thought of the auto shop at the nearby high school.

Shop instructor Gary Cronon agreed to have his students complete the necessary repairs so that the departure deadline for the journey to Phoenix could be met.

Jerry Fowler, Jeff Hafner, Mark Butler and

Mark Hurlbert teamed in the shop and performed the repairs so that the car operated flawlessly.

Starting from his outside front row position, for former Indianapolis 500 and USAC stock car veteran Cheesbourg, 47, of Tucson, the car had to offer by leading the whole race in a car he had not seen prior to the race.

Needless to say, Cheesbourg has been contracted to drive the car in the remaining races of the season.

Another ALHS student, Jeff Mendenhall, a regular member of the pit crew, played a major role in preparing the car by working until the wee hours of the morning for over two weeks prior to the race.

Jeff accompanies the car on all the trips on the circuit when school activities do not conflict.

"We had to change the springs nine times during the day and another four times before the main event," Cheesbourg said after his first - ever NASCAR victory. "We didn't have any brakes left either."

Jimmy Insole, Mission Hills, in a 72 Monte Carlo finished second — two car lengths back, and Richard White, in a 72 Chevelle from Escondido, was third an additional two car lengths back.

Completing the local effort, Ron Hertzberg, of Speedmaster Welding, Upland, repaired an A arm that was bent on the car during the heat race prior to the main event.

Ron and his welding truck accompanied Cheesbourg's car to the Phoenix track, as he does with all the races on the circuit.

Without a ball joint given the crew by fellow NASCAR driver Sonny Easley of Van Nuys between the heat race and the main event and Ron's welding truck, the car would not have made the main event.

Youngest, oldest Homes honor mothers

By Lynne Locke

Shea Convalescent Hospital and California Villa honored the oldest and youngest mothers during May. They are Esther Horst, 99 years old, and Beatrice Burns, 57, from Shea; and Beulah Stone, 96, and Alice Brom, 59, of California Villa.

Mrs. Horst said her wedding day is one of her happiest memories. She and her husband had planned a large wedding. But they married in a quiet home wedding when his mother became critically ill.

She was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania but came to California because one daughter had tuberculosis. Mrs. Horst has two daughters and two sons. She also has 14 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Horst's interests are quite wide. "I'm not a very particular person. I like everything that's fun and cute, but no things that are mean," she commented.

Beulah Stone was born in Indiana and came to California during the war. Her husband moved around the country as a druggist substituting for druggists who went into military service. Mrs. Stone remembers traveling around the country with "three children and a dog."

She enjoys visiting with her three sons and their families who all live in Southern California and proudly noted she has several great-grandchildren.

Beatrice Burns was born in Los Angeles and has lived in California all of her life. "I traveled a lot but I liked California best," she commented.

Mrs. Burns said raising her son was the happiest part of her life. "We did a lot of things together. We were buddies," she said. She has a 17-year-old grandson and 13-year-old granddaughter.

Alice Brom's happiest memory is the birth of her first son. She was married late in life, so having children was a special happiness, she said.

Mrs. Brom has two daughters and a son. She is waiting for the birth of her first grandchild and said, "It doesn't matter whether it's a boy or a girl."

She enjoys living at California Villa and "being in a group of people, laughing and smiling. I just enjoy these people very much," she added.

Mrs. Brom's interests include singing hymns, sitting on the beach and watching the children playing in the water, and going on picnics and fishing, "but I don't catch anything," she noted. She was born in Ohio but has lived in California 20 years.

'Upland' trio SAL picks

Upland High School failed to land a berth on the All-San Antonio League varsity baseball team for the 1975 season, but that doesn't mean that the city was without a representative.

Three youngsters who got their fundamentals in Upland youth ranks, but who elected to attend Damien (La Verne) have been selected by coaches to the first unit.

Included are "player of the year" Frank Pastore, the much-heralded pitcher who has signed a national letter of intent to attend Stanford University, but still figures to be a first round choice in the free agent professional draft next month; catcher John Pignotti; and the league's top hitter, center fielder Dan Monroe.

Two other members of Coach Matt Kolodge's Spartans, infielder Bob DeBolt and the late Vincent Garcia, were other first team choices.

DeBolt was one of only three infielders selected to the first unit. He was joined by Mike Medeiros (Montclair) and Tim Helton (Claremont).

In addition to Monroe, the other two outfield berths were awarded to Greg Walton (Montclair) and Dan Thomas (Claremont).

Joining Pastore and Garcia on the pitching unit are Brent Jetton (Montclair) and Dan Ross (Garey), while Robbie Franklin (Garey) is the utility performer.

Joey Zamudio, Upland's all-purpose performer, was the utility pick on the second team, to be the lone selection of Coach Bob Garvin's regular season forces. Other choices include infielders Alan Wells (Pomona), Rich Tullis (Claremont) and Ronny Stancyk (Garey); outfielders Rick Riedel (Chino), Robert Alexander (Damien) and Greg Thompson (Claremont); catcher John Lusk (Chino).

NOW TAX DEFERRED RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS!

You now have the right under the "Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974" to create your own retirement program with the help of federal income tax deductions, during your working years.

This simplified and very attractive new type of personal pension program is called the "Individual Retirement Account" — (IRA for short), and is available at Ontario Savings.

Now you can defer paying federal income tax on a portion of your salary or wages. Stop in and let us explain how an IRA account works and how you can withhold paying federal income tax until you reach your 70th birthday.

The interest on your IRA account is also exempt from federal income tax until the money is withdrawn. You can start receiving payments from your IRA account at age 59½ — in a lump sum or installments.

By setting up an IRA account, every dollar you decide to deposit up to $1,500.00 annual maximum or 15% of wages (whichever is less), is protected from current federal income tax, and so is the interest your IRA account earns. You pay the federal income tax later, but with substantial savings. Both working husband and working wife may have a separate IRA account — each up to the maximum of $1,500.00 or 15% of wages (whichever is less) — that's $3,000.00 a year that can be deducted!

INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS ARE FOR YOU:

1. If you don't have a pension with your company or union.
2. If you're leaving a company with your pension or profit sharing.
3. If you're self-employed and must provide your own pension.
4. If you own or manage a company that is considering pensions.

Magic Mountain

Roller-coaster
to be built at park

VALENCIA — The Great American Revolution, described as "the world's ultimate roller-coaster," will open at Magic Mountain this winter as a major focal point of the park's Bicentennial Celebration.

Featuring, for the first time anywhere, a 360 degree loop, vertical to the ground, the coaster represents an investment of approximately $3 million for the amusement/entertainment park.

According to Terry E. Van Gorder, Magic Mountain's president, on-site construction of The Great American Revolution will begin early this summer near the park's main entrance. The super-coaster's steel components are now being devised and developed especially for Magic Mountain by Germany's world famous thrill ride creators, Schwarzkopf, in association with Switzerland's Intamin AG.

The Great American

Revolution will totally revolutionize the concept of amusement park thrill rides," Van Gorder stated. "It brings to Magic Mountain the absolute ultimate guest-participation ride experience, combining the sensations of every roller-coaster ever built into one unbelievable adventure. There has never been anything like it, or even approaching it, anywhere in the world."

Traveling a tall, steep 3,460 foot course, Revolution riders will experience a wide variety of thrills. Following a fast series of heart-pounding dips, the coaster will pick up speed for its incredible journey around its one-of-a-kind 360 degree vertical loop. The loop's top will rise 70 feet from ground level and will measure 45 feet in diameter.

The Great American Revolution will be included with Magic Mountain's famous 50 rides, attractions and entertainment in the park's one-price admission policy.

Tram's summer runs start June 1

PALM SPRINGS — On June 1, the Palm Springs aerial tramway will begin operating on its summer schedule, closing Tuesdays and Wednesdays, O.L. McKenney, general manager, said.

The schedule will remain in effect until Nov. 1. The tram will close for about 10 days starting Sept. 2 to allow for annual maintenance.

During the summer, tram cars will leave the valley station every 30 minutes beginning at 10 a.m. Last car down is 9 p.m. eat cereal and milk.

Regular prices will remain in effect during the summer to the tram ride and ride 'n dine dinner combination.

Scout camps let girls experiment

Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council offers a wide range of day and resident camping experiences at 20 locations for girls from six years through high school seniors.

Registration for council camps may be made by girls within the scouting ranks and by those who are not Girl Scouts.

Spanish Trails receives funds to assist girls who need financial help in order to attend day or resident camps through the Los Angeles Times campership fund and from donations by organizations and individuals within its 33 communities. Applications for these funds are available at the council office. Parents may apply if there is a need for assistance with part or all of the camp fees. Community organizations may participate in this program by contributing to campership funds.

The experience of being away from home — "living" with new friends, "learning" new crafts and skills, "doing" things for and by themselves — may bring new dimension into a girl's life.

The troop cabin at the Palomar mountain campsite will be completed in time for Palomar Resident Camp to begin on July 11. The camp offers an emphasis on ecology and conservation. Backpacking units, archery, swimming at a nearby pool and canoeing on an adjacent lake are planned at the 360-acre site in northern San Diego County.

Young astronomers may enjoy a hike to the Palomar Observatory. Special interest-group activities will be included and a taste of pioneer life is assured. Camp staff prepare most meals, although girls may occasionally use their culinary ingenuity at camp stoves. Sandy Jacob, a council field director, will direct camp sessions through Aug.

25 for girls entering fourth through twelfth grades in the fall.

Hideout Canyon, a perpetually popular resident camp located in Big Dalton in Glendora, provides an introduction to camping for third through fifth graders during July and August sessions. Campers sleep on cots out-of-doors is the emphasis at the site. Mini-sessions during two long-weekends will also be held at "Hideout" for girls entering second through sixth grades.

Junior Woodsman for experienced campers entering fifth through seventh grades will include in-town planning at the Covina Scout House before busing to Twin Valleys near Wrightwood. "Hiking to Jackson Lake for swimming and an opportunity to improve outdoor skills are provided during five days in the mountains in July," Joy Simkins of Hacienda Heights, who directs the program stated.

A Cadette Mini-Camp will be held at Johnstone Scout House in San Dimas from Aug. 5-7. Seventh through ninth grade girls who have attended a general or specialized day camp during the summer may register. Campers may plan an all-day trek to Puddingstone and outdoor cooking will highlight activities. Katie Jimenez, director, commented, "A significant benefit of this camp is the blending and sharing of girls at this scouting level from various communities in the council."

Specialized day camps include Art All Around at La Bonita Park in La Habra with a focus on art and home art badges. "Campers may plan and create projects to suit individual interests with a variety of materials at their disposal," Director Jean Palmer from Whittier said. Fourth through ninth graders may register for the July camp.

The Understatement of the Year: Headache Is A Symptom of Migraine

By Dr. W. P. Helzer, D.C.

Is migraine a headache or is headache but a symptom of migraine?

That would make a good discussion in medical circles.

But it's a rather meaningless discussion to the migraine sufferer. Their problem involves excruciating head pain which I'm sure anyone would consider the cruelest form of headache.

Dr. W. P. Helzer, D.C.

However migraine is a condition in itself.

Headache is what we call the "presenting symptom" — the one that continues the attack. It is often preceded by a short period of depression, irritability, restlessness and blurred vision. These symptoms may disappear shortly before the headache appears or they may persist or merge with it.

The pain is usually generalized but sometimes it is confined to one side of the head. Symptoms in an individual case are apt to follow a pattern although a migraine sufferer often has pains on the right side in some attacks and the left side in others.

During an attack there is usually nausea, zig-zag flashes, possible vomiting and pain that radiates from the base of the skull, shooting across the head. The migraine is devastating. The extremities are cold and the person is extremely irritable and desires seclusion. The attack may last for hours or days. The frequency varies from daily to once in months. Of course, once the attacks begin they most certainly will re-occur if the person does not seek proper treatment.

Migraine is not an obscure problem that affects only an unfortunate few. Reliable medical statisticians estimate that it attacks 10 per cent of the population. Stop and think of it... nearly 20 million people or 1 in 10.

While migraine can occur at any age it generally affects persons in their twenties, thirties and forties. Women are more frequently affected than men.

As for effective treatment of the migraine, this is a puzzling situation. Too many individuals tragically undergo such therapeutic procedures as foreign protein injections, artificial fever, dietary regimens, glandular therapy, histamine desensitization, sedatives and operative procedures on the cranial arteries. Yet these are all designed only to reduce the frequency of attacks — yes, only "reduce the frequency."

We have many individuals who have come to us for treatment of the migraine condition. They seek permanent removal of the conditions that bring on migraine.

Happily I can say that literally hundreds have found that at our office systematic treatment is directed towards permanent eradication of migraine and the resolution of the tensions and conflicts that surround this most serious condition.

Scout camps

Sports Galore located at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut will be directed by Pat Gentry. Instruction will be provided in archery, badminton, golf, softball, swimming and volleyball. The girls may plan tournaments or camp olympics during the July event.

Corral and Saddle Up camps will be held at Les Jones Stables in Diamond Bar. Girls in the seventh grade and older may attend the Corral session to fulfill requirements for the horsewoman badge. Saddle Up is for the more advanced equestrian. Eighth grade and older girls who have previously attended Corral Camp or who are experienced riders are eligible to attend. The more advanced camp provides greater detail on horse care and trail etiquette. An hour on horseback daily highlights each of these June schedules.

Youthful homemakers may attempt baking, stitching and home crafts during Make and Bake at the Covina Scout House in July. Girls entering fourth through sixth grades may register. "Completion of home arts badges and an awareness of homemaking skills and techniques will be focal points," commented Jo Thorne of Diamond Bar, director.

General day camp sites provide nature-oriented program utilizing specific surroundings of camp locations. Girl-planned activities take precedence at some sites and most camps are scheduled between 2 to 8 p.m. to avoid summer school conflicts. Brownies and Juniors may register for any camp and Cadette units are available at several also.

Night Owl in June and Twilight Fun in July will be held at Cortez Park in Covina. Sycamore Canyon Park in Diamond Bar and Legg Lake in El Monte are scheduled in July.

Day camps at Mayberry Park in June and Michigan Park in July are each located in Whittier. Little Lake

Park in Santa Fe Springs is also a June campsite.

The Pomona Fairgrounds is the June site for Camporal, with Upland Memorial Park in Upland a July site.

UCR final production

RIVERSIDE — "Luv," the poignant three-character comedy written by Murray Schisgal, will be the final production May 29 through 31 in the University of California, Riverside's Master of Fine Arts theatre workshop season.

Registration forms for any council camp may be obtained from the council office: 1550 N. Garey; Pomona, CA 91767; (213) 331-7325 or (714) 623-2518 until a week prior to camp openings space-permitting.

Directed by graduate student Helene Eccleston, the 1966 play will be performed in Studio Theatre each evening at 8:15.

Sister St. Maur

St. Joseph School instructor retires

"It's going to be a readjustment in my life because I have been around kids so many years," said Sister St. Maur upon announcing her retirement from teaching at St. Joseph Parochial School, Upland. Sister St. Maur was one of the original group of teaching sisters of the Presentation order of Ireland obtained by the late Monsignor Michael Browne to staff the school.

She has taught first grade since the school's inception in 1955. She previously taught first grade in Ireland for ten years prior to her assignment in Upland.

Sister St. Maur expressed her appreciation towards all the parental cooperation during the past 20 years.

The sister regularly participated in physical education and was instrumental in various school fund raising projects.

Sister St. Maur came from a family that saw her sister enter the religious life as a sister in nursing. She is currently serving in Ireland. Her brother served as a missionary priest for the Diocese of Amarillo, Texas, until his death two years ago.

St. Joseph Parish is not entirely losing the services of Sister St. Maur. She will remain with the order of sisters but will be occupied with pastoral work. She was recently declared an extraordinary minister by the Bishop of the San Diego Diocese and will be doing various works at the discretion of the pastor.

This is the premier event in an on-going Christian youth ministry to be sponsored by "One Accord."

NOW PLAYING — Shaun Fesler of Monrovia, playing the character "Paul Friedman," pumps up an inflatable chair in the apartment for Donna Sweeney of Fontana, playing the character "Ann Miller," in a rehearsal for the Gallery Theatre's production of the comedy "SIX RMS RIV VU," now playing. For ticket information, call the theater, located at the corner of C Street and Lemon Avenue, Ontario, (714) 982-5357. (Photo by Don Ham)

'Magic Show' opens June 7

"The Magic Show," a blockbuster magic musical-comedy hit on Broadway for the past year, opens in Los Angeles June 7 thru July 20, at the Shubert Theatre in Century City, and stars the youthful wizard, Peter DePaula.

For the first time the art of legerdemain has ever been showcased in a rock musical score, "The Magic Show" is solid family fare delighting audiences of all ages with its light, carefree view of the conjurer and his bag of mysteries.

It's magic in a modern light, with 21-year-old magician DePaula more likely to be found in denim and a friendly smile rather than the traditional sinister look, silk top hat and cape.

The large-scale and lavish illusions are the work of Doug Henning, the star of the Broadway production.

Performances are scheduled for Tues. thru Sat. at 8:30 p.m., Sun. evenings at 7:30 p.m., and matinees on Wed. and Sat. at 2:30 p.m.

For ticket information call (213) 553-9000.

Designed for handicapped hikers

Mojave Narrows trail ready

The San Bernardino County Regional Parks Department has announced that after three years of design, construction and civic participation, the Mojave Narrows Regional Park Trail for the Handicapped will open on May 31. First District Supervisor James L. Mayfield will officiate in ceremonies beginning at 10:30 a.m. Also on hand will be representatives of the County Parks Department and the Victorville Rotary Club.

Development of the two-thirds of a mile long nature trail has been a joint effort between the Park's Department and the Victorville Rotary Club. Through the direction of Louis Penna, chief of planning for regional parks, and John Duncan, Mojave Narrows Park superintendent, the initial concept, planning and coordination of the trail took place. The Rotary Club, under project manager Dr. Gilbert McAdams, contributed much time and effort in building the trail, as well as supplying $5,000 worth of railroad ties used during construction. The trail is an eight foot wide, completely paved pathway that winds through a heavily wooded section of the park. Five wildlife sensory stations have been placed at various locations along the way to encourage personal contact with the forest's inhabitants. At the halfway point, visitors may rest in a scenic view area adjacent to Pelican Lake, the smaller of Mojave Narrows' two lakes.

Special week

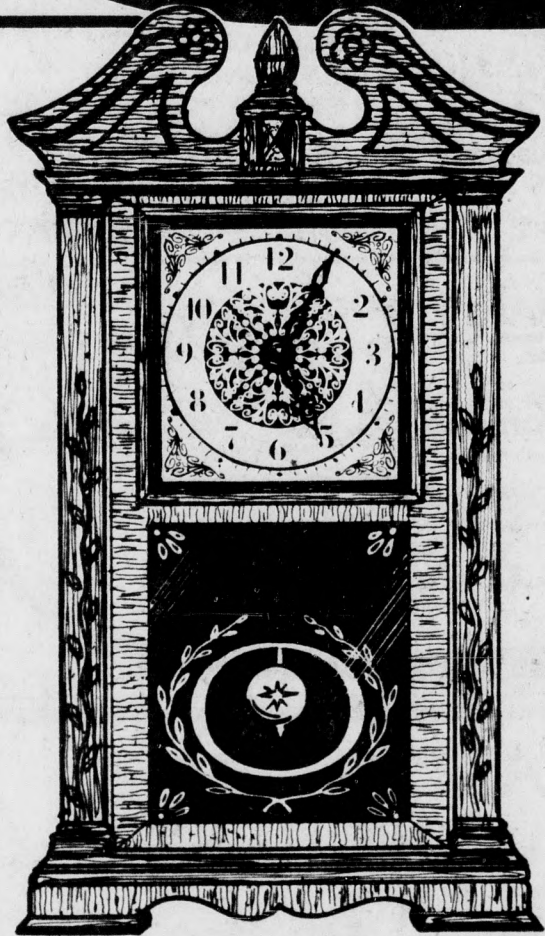

In recognition of International Women's Year, Cal Poly, Pomona will stage Women's Awareness Week on campus Sunday, June 1 through Friday, June 6. The series of daily programs will include men and women guest speakers from off and on campus:

films; a feminist fair; a teach-in; a self-help clinic and an auto repair clinic. Among the off-campus guest lecturers will be Dr. Doris Seward, national president of the Women's Equity Action League (WEAL).

All-Star basketball

Locals plentiful on North squad

Four All-Valley players heads the list of North All-Stars who will compete in the second annual Pomona Valley High School All-Star Basketball Game, it was announced today by the sponsoring La Verne Rotary Club.

Forwards Harold Drake (Bonita), Mike Toomay (Claremont) and Steve Brahs (San Dimas) plus guard John Pignotti (Damien) are the four All-Valley players who were selected.

A total of 12 players were named by head coach Jeff McCall of Alta Loma to compete on the North squad.

Completing the roster for the North include forward Tom Erbstoesser and guard Roger Gubichuk (Alta Loma), forward Brian Harrison and guard Roosevelt Morris (Charter Oak), forward Cornell Kasberger (Damien), guard Danny Wilson (Pomona), forward Scott Woodland (Royal Oak) and forward Dave Duncan (Upland).

The 12 were selected from a list of players nominated by the head coaches of schools located north of the San Bernardino

Freeway. All players must be graduating seniors, with no more than two players from each school being represented.

Drake, (6-1, 170) a three-year letterman at Bonita, was the sixth leading scorer in the valley this past season — averaging 20.3 points per game. His 18.9

average in the Hacienda league listed him second behind Brahs.

Brahs (6-3, 175), the San Dimas sharpshooter, not only led his league in scoring (24.0), but also led the entire valley with a 22.6 average. Steve was a 50 per cent shooter from the floor for the Saints, hit 90 per cent of his free throws and grabbed 134 rebounds.

Toomay was the second leading scorer in both the San Antonio League and the valley this past season. The 6-foot-4, 185-pound forward averaged 21 points for the season and 18.9 in league play.

Pignotti (6-0, 160), who also plays catcher for the Spartans' baseball team, is one of the steadiest players in the valley. John was the third-leading scorer in the league with a 17.8 average. He was ninth in the valley with a 16.7 average. He lives in Upland.

Three players from the 12-man North roster were All-Valley honorable mentions. They include Gubichuk, Morris and Woodland.

The game is scheduled Tuesday, June 17 (8 p.m.) at Claremont High School.

Each participant in the game shall have had at least 12 days of organized practice prior to participating in the game.

Zone defenses will not be permitted, but a full court zone press will be.

Horse trade show to open

"Horse-O-Rama," a trade-consumer show designed specifically for equestrians, will open a three-day run, June 6-8 at Great Western Exhibit Center, 2120 S. Eastern Ave., Commerce.

One of the main features will be a Swap Meet, with only tack and other equipment on sale. Two auctions are also scheduled; on Sat., June 7, for grade horses and on Sun., June 8, for registered horses.

Hours are: Fri., June 6, from 3 to 11 p.m.; Sat., June 7, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., and on Sun., June 8, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. The Great Western Exhibit Center is located off the Santa Ana Freeway in Commerce at the Atlantic Blvd. North exit. For information phone 213-723-3678, or 714-994-1280.

VCT closed

POMONA—The Valley Community Theatre will be closed until further notice according to the announcement made by Mack Gilliland, president of the VCT organization.

Renovations in building support are taking place and when completed, the production of "Promises, Promises" will continue its weekend runs on Friday and Saturday nights.

Further information is available by calling the theater at 622-6954.
